CLARK WEAVER QUITTING THE CLOTHING BUSINESS

W. A. Mann and Son Will Start First Class Restaurant in Weaver Building on West Third.

W. A. Mann and his son, William Mann, will open a restaurant and cafe June 1, in the building now occupied by the Clark Weaver clothing store on West Third street.

In business tenure, Mr. Weaver is the oldest merchant in Maryville at the present time. He came to Maryville in 1873 and established a clothing and mercantile business in the store which he now occupies. He has been continuously here in business with the exception of two years. About twelve years ago Mr. Weaver sold out his business and the building was leased to the Porter & Sons grocery. Two years later Mr. Weaver went into the clothing business again at the old stand, and has remained since then.

The building will be entirely remodeled and refinished ready for the new cafe and the proprietors will install the best of equipment for a first class restaurant. William Mann has been employed for some time as chef at Pennington's cafe, and has had seventeen years experience in this line of business.

Mr. Weaver expects to close out his clothing stock during the next month. He will continue to make his home in Maryville and will reside in apartments over the Carsten store on West Third street, which he owns.

WILFLEY ELECTED C. OF C. PRESIDENT

FIRST BOARD OF DIRECTORS PRESENT LAST NIGHT.

IN OPERATION 13 YEARS

No Deaths and But Two Removals From Executive Board Since Start in 1907.

G. L. Wilfley, president of the Farmers Trust company, was re-elected president of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce, at the meeting of the board of directors held last night. Following the annual business meeting of last Tuesday when three new directors were elected, the board was re-organized last night and the other officers chosen for the coming year are R. P. Hosmer, first vice president; C. F. Remus, second vice president; R. B. Montgomery, treasurer and George A. Pickens, secretary.

The weekly meeting held last night was one of the most interesting in the history of the Chamber of Commerce. Preceeding the business meeting, a dinner was given at the Linville hotel attended by about fifty members.

It was a reminiscent meeting at which it was arranged that the first board of directors should be present as a body. This board was seated at one end of the table designated "Directors of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce, 1920" was placed.

The original board, all present last night was composed of F. G. Shoemaker, D. R. Eversole, Charles Hyslop, George A. Pickens, G. B. Roseberry, Paul Sisson, H. L. Raines, J. W. Airy and Nick Sturm. All of these men are still members of the organization which has now grown into the Chamber of Commerce. The present board of directors is composed of G. L. Wilfley, E. C. Curfman, C. F. Remus, R. B. Montgomery, E. A. Barmann, Fred R. Wolfers, M. E. Ford, F. S. King, and R. P. Hosmer.

Other men present who have served as directors during the intervening years from 1907 to 1920 were F. P. Robinson, E. G. Orear, Charles McNeal, J. F. Hull, Joseph Jackson, Jr., C. C. Hellmers, Dr. Jesse Miller, Albert Kuchs, Charles Wadley, E. E. Williams, Roy J. Curfman, C. W. Yehle, Dr. C. T. Bell, G. R. Ellison, Harvey Haines, Dr. W. M. Wallis, Jr., and Ed J. Schumacher.

A significant fact connected with the board of directors is that there has never been a death among the members, all who have ever been members of the board have remained working members in the organization. Only two who have served as directors have been lost by the Chamber. They are P. O. Landon, who has moved to Jerseyville, Ill., and W. C. Pierson, who is now a resident of St. Joseph.

Talks were made by President G. L. Wilfley, both former and present directors, and by C. E. Donlin of Hopkins, who was present at the dinner, and by C. D. Kutschinski, instructor of music at the State Teacher's college and city band director, who took up his residence here this week.

The general hopes and aims of the organization in working together for a better, bigger Maryville, was the general theme of discussion.

NEBRASKA AND GEORGIA STATE PRIMARIES TODAY

Georgia presidential primary started this morning. The outlook is bright for one of the largest votes in the history of the state. It is the first contest at the polls between the national administration and its opposition within the democratic party. Interest in the outcome is national wide. Palmers leaders, aides of Hoke Smith and Watson supporters express certainty of success. "Wise ones" in politics made no expression only that "race was very close."

Lincoln, April 20.—With the political eyes of the nation fixed on the primaries being held in Nebraska today The voters are reported by party leaders to be casting an unusually vote. RAIL STRIKER CHIEF AND AIDS JAILED AT CHICAGO

Re-arrested as Result of Refusal to Give Bail—Freight Service is 60 Per Cent Normal.

Chicago, April 20—Another "wet blanket" was cast over the switchmen's strike in the Chicago district today as a result of the action of thirty-eight thousand railway clerks and freight handlers in voting against joining the "rebel walkout." The vote favored leaving the grievances to be settled by the labor board appointed under the Cummins-Esch law. John Grunau, strikers chief, and four aides were in jail today as a result of their refusal to give bail on their rearrest on charges of violating the Lever act. Twenty-five more re-arrests are planned.

Railroad officials reported the freight movement is back to sixty per cent of normal service. A coal shortage due to the strike is threatened and the President may be asked to establish a federal fuel administrator here unless conditions improve materially within the next two days.

Chicago, April 20—It was bulletined that the strike of Chicago switchmen would be called off Wednesday. It was further announced that the decision was reached at a meeting of the strike leaders who claim victory over railroads and brotherhoods but announced they would not fight the government in order to maintain wages.

CENSUS COUNT FOR MARYVILLE 4711

DECREASE OF 1.1 PER CENT

Special to Democrat-Forum.

Washington, D. C., April 20.—According to the preliminary count, subject to correction, the population of Maryville is 4,711. This announcement was made today by Mr. Rogers, director of the census. This is a decrease of 51 over the census of ten years ago or a loss of 1.1 per cent.

The population of Maryville is 4,711. The government figures were received by The Democrat-Forum this morning from Director Rogers of the Census Bureau and from the International News Service.

Many people were disappointed in the figures as it was predicting by many that we would reach the 5,000 mark. Many cities over the country have complained of the laxity of the enumeration made in the present census. There have been several cases of where citizens were missed. It was pointed out that many houses had been built in the city in the last ten years and that today it was impossible to get a vacant house.

From the platting of Maryville in September, 1845 to 1870, it increased to a town of 3,390; by 1880, it reached 4,400; by 1890, owing to various causes the place dopped back to 4,037; by 1900, it had grown to be a city of 4,577; and in 1910 the census was 4,762.

There has been some discussion recently of having the Chamber of Commerce to take a special census of the city. The proposition will be brought up at one of the meetings of the club.

POLITICAL NOTES.

High praise for a piece of legislation enacted by a Democratic Congress was given recently when Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, in an address before the National Press Club, at Washington, said that, in his opinion, the Overman act was the finest worded piece of legislation ever enacted by Congress except the Sherman act. It was the Overman act that enabled the President to transfer authority from one Executive department to another to more expeditiously prosecute the war.

Whether or not it be fair to criticize a Republican Congress for failing to adopt a reconstruction legislative program recommended by a Democratic President, it is at least in order to criticize it for failing to develop any alternative program and for total failure to keep the campaign pledges to enact such legislation so vociferously made to the people in the fall of 1918.

Senator Harding says he is sorry the Senate refused to ratify the treaty of peace. If he hadn't given his vote and his vocal efforts to Mr. Lodge's program the treaty would have prospered. In addition to being sorry Senator Harding ought to be ashamed.

There is a tendency on the part of Republican leaders in Congress to criticize the Executive branch of the Government for things done. Is there not justification for the charge that Congress has done all too little?

"Joy riding" to Hawaii and the Orient is one of the most pleasant methods members of Congress have hit upon for practicing economy—for themselves. Uncle Sam will pay most of the freight.

A Michigan jury performed its sworn duty in the Newberry case, but the Republican Senate is still derelict in its duty.

A Washing Machine Every Day

We are selling an average of almost one Electric Washer every day, and so many people have solved their wash day problem with the electric washer that it is easy to direct you to a neighbor who has one if you want to know what the electric washer will do for you.

The electric washing machine takes very little current to operate. It may be attached to any light socket and three or four cents worth of electricity will do an ordinary washing.

Women who have never been able to do their own washing are using electrics and doing it ALL ALONE. It is far easier to do a washing with the electric washer than it is to sweep a floor with a broom—

And that reminds us—

It isn't necessary to sweep with a broom when you can have an electric vacuum sweeper.

LETTER FROM MRS. BRUCE

Tells Remarkable Story of Sickness and Recovery.

Brooksburg, Ind.—"When I was a young girl I clerked in my father's store and lifted heavy boxes which caused displacement and I suffered greatly. I was married at the age of eighteen and went to a doctor about my trouble and he said if I had a child I would be all right. After three years twins came to us and I did get all right but three years later a baby boy came and I was troubled again. I could scarcely do any work at all and suffered for four years. A neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it for a year or more. Now I have a baby girl and do not have any female trouble. You can do anything you like with my letter to help others."—Mrs. J. M. Bruce, R. F. D. 3, Brooksburg, Ind.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for more than forty years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

BEAUTIFUL LOVE PLOT IN "HEART O' THE HILLS"

If Steve Honeycutt and Widow Hawn had followed the advice of their children, Mary Pickford would not be able to offer such a wonderful picture as "Heart O' the Hills," adapted from the story by John Fox, Jr., which will be shown at the Electric Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

As Mavis Hawn, Miss Pickford takes the part of a Kentucky mountain girl at war with certain factors which she knows nothing of and determined at least to put an end for all time to come to the whippings which her mother has been liberally inflicting.

A love tale is interwoven in the plot about a mountain feud of long-standing and the story affords Miss Pickford ample opportunity to score such triumphs as characterized "Daddy Longlegs," and "The Hoodlum," her previous attractions from her own studios and released through First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

Mavis and her sweetheart, Jason Honeycutt, oppose the marriage of their parents for the reason that Honeycutt's prime motive is prompted by a desire to secure Widow Hawn's valuable coal lands.

By BARON GOTO, Former Governor of Formosa.

I have just concluded a long trip through the United States and Great Britain to appraise the effect of the great war. It is eighteen years since I last visited the Occident, and I regret to find that in the meantime there have appeared some evidences of degeneration in its civilization.

This is particularly so among women, whose outstanding proof of moral perversity is their undue display of ankles.

I was profoundly impressed by the show of ankles and even calves in New York and London, particularly in London, where I least expected to find such frivolity.

That London ladies should reveal more of their ankles than on my previous visit is evidence to me of a decline in social decorum. Any increase of ankle display points to degeneration.

In New York and London the ankles were protruded on my notice.

True Meaning of "Racial Equality" as Demanded by Japanese Diplomats.

By SENATOR PHELAN of California. Speech in Congress.

We receive Japanese diplomats, their travelers, their students, in our homes and in our schools on terms of equality, and all their nationals already in the country of every class enjoy the equal protection of the laws and have equal access to the courts. What is the equality they seek?

It is not a question of personal equality as between man and man that is involved at all in this discussion of "racial equality." It is that legal equality under which the Japanese would claim the right freely to come into the United States, just as do the nationals of any other country; it is that equality under which they would claim the right of naturalization, of citizenship, of the elective franchise, of intermarriage, and of the holding of land.

By actual experience we find that we can not admit that equality involving all these things. We can not on terms of political equality or of social equality or of commercial or industrial equality admit freely the Japanese without inevitably involving the destruction of the American population now upon the soil. It is a question of self-preservation.

"Consulting Engineer to the U. S. A., One of the World's Greatest Jobs."

By HERBERT C. HOOVER, Former Food Administrator.

To speak with absolute truth, it is not my ambition to be president of the United States at all. To become one of the consulting engineers to the United States would be the sort of a position that would suit me a great deal better. The latter, I think, would be one of the greatest jobs the world holds today for any man.

What we really need here, over and above everything else, is a survey made by engineers from a detached point of view. This survey should expose and ventilate our national problems and it should diagnose these ills and prescribe scientifically the cure for them.

Like all surveys made by good engineers, in contradistinction to those made by good politicians, it would uncover the facts in the case. If the facts in our case are not uncovered, we may very well make up our minds that the period of reconstruction is going to be a period of slip-shod patching up that will prove neither effective nor final and in the end be tragical.

We need this engineers' survey in order that we may make our creaking economic, political and social machine truly efficient.

If we are to get anywhere, we have got to consolidate all the overlapping agencies which have grown up in our government and focus up our problem so that we can focus up also the work that is to be done.

All the cheeseparing that goes on in the honest effort of congressional committees to control departmental expenditures is only a tithe of that which could be effected with concentration of administration such as has long since been demonstrated to be necessary to the success of private business.

To minds charged with the necessity of advanced planning, co-ordination and the synchronizing of parts in an organization, the whole notion of our hit-or-miss system is repugnant.

A budget system is not the remedy for all administrative ills; but it provides a basis of organization that at least does not paralyze administrative efficiency, as our system does today.

Although there are forty pressing problems to be disposed of by our people in the very near future, I believe that, perhaps, there are two right now more important than any others—first, getting the League of Nations to work so that we and all other countries can begin to cut down great, expensive exhausting armaments, and, second, to get our national government expenses and taxes efficiently organized.

British Women Face the Alternative of Emigration or Spinsterhood.

By DAVID C. LAMB, British Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army in the British isles, working in co-operation with the government, is promoting emigration of the approximately 1,250,000 women in excess of the male population there. We offer no apology for active propaganda designed to procure a better distribution of the sexes. One of the biggest after-the-war tasks assigned the Salvation Army in Britain is to stimulate female emigration and direct it to those colonies in the British empire such as western Canada and portions of Africa and Australia, where there are more male than female inhabitants. The prospect of placing female domestics in the United States has not been overlooked.

Our records show that of the girls who emigrated some years ago to certain sections where women were in the minority, 60 per cent were married within three years of their arrival.

16 Million 438 Thousand Miles a Day

THIS is the potential mileage supplied daily to the people of the Middle West by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

In arriving at these figures we have taken ten miles per gallon as the performance of the average car, and multiplied it by 600,000,000, the number of gallons of gasoline marketed by this Company last year, and divided the result by 365.

The task confronting the Company is a dual one.

Not only must it maintain this flow of gasoline at all times, but it must so plan its activities as to keep pace with constantly increasing demand for fuel, whether this demand be normal or abnormal.

That, in a word, is the job of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and the Company is as big as its job.

Every resource, every ounce of energy, and all its equipment are at work to keep pace with the insistent demands for gasoline and other products.

The management recognizes its responsibility to the motorists of the 11 states the Company serves, and every effort is being made to meet this responsibility.

Uncle Sam and the States Should Join in Americanizing by Education.

By SENATOR PHIPPS of Colorado. Speech in Congress.

One of our present problems, which should properly be termed a duty, is to make suitable provisions for the education of the 8,500,000 people in this country, over 10 years of age, who are unable to read, write, or speak English. Undoubtedly this duty rests primarily upon the individual states, which are supposed to provide the necessary facilities for the education of all of their inhabitants.

Were we to leave this problem of Americanization to the several states for solution, it would, no doubt, eventually be solved, although the greater part of the benefit to be derived by the people, the states, and the nation would be lost through the lapse of time necessary to accomplish by separate effort what may be more quickly and better done through concerted action.

No doubt, critics will raise a cry of paternalism. Can they successfully contend that the federal supervision and expenditure proposed at this time is either unwise, unjustifiable, or will prove unprofitable to the general government?

It has seemed to your committee that the federal government should take the initiative in this movement; that through its proper bureau it should systematize the plan of action and arrange for co-ordination and co-operation by the states; that it should be willing to appropriate one dollar for each dollar expended by the states.

The bulk of taxation, both state and national, is derived from real estate and other tangible property, or from operations of business; and as these interests are the ones which will benefit most through the operations of the proposed measure, it would seem wise to rely upon general taxation for the proposed education rather than to assess its cost upon those who will receive the instruction themselves.

No population can become homogeneous unless and until its people speak the same language and the attainment of such a condition in our country will be well worth whatever it may cost.

"I Urge the Next Great Moral Reform: Single Standard of Morality."

By W. J. BRYAN, Nebraska Constitutional Convention Speech.

I would like to see the State of Nebraska raise here the banner of the next great moral reform by writing into the constitution the single standard of morality. All legislation rests upon a theory and that theory should be stated in the constitution. You necessarily indorse the single standard or the double standard.

I urge the indorsement of the single standard—no segregation of sin; no licensing of vice; the penalties for immorality enforced impartially against the two sexes. That, my friends, I believe is to be the next great moral reform, and I would like to see Nebraska lead the fight.

The women are here; their consciences will be with us; their influence will help us. How dare we longer discriminate against woman and give to an immoral man a respectability that we deny to her?

They will stand side by side before the judgment bar of God, and, if they must stand side by side there, we should not give one of them an advantage over the other in the tribunals which man creates.

By DR. R. S. COPELAND, New York Health Department.

The one-room-and-kitchenette apartment has demoralized New York city. Because of such living quarters, this city is suffering from increased number of divorces; diminished family life and relationship; lazy and shiftless women; increased immorality. And what is true of New York is true also of every big city in the United States.

It does more than increase the cost of living. It makes possible a shiftless, irresponsible existence for wives, by taking from them their natural occupation of home-making. For who could make a home in one room where the bed folds into a library table and the dresser is concealed under the Morris chair?

You remember the old bit of wisdom about idle hands and Satan? It holds good there. A large percentage of the pitiable moths, some with their wings singed and broken, that you see fluttering round the lights of Broadway, are these idle wives. As for the families—children in such a home are quite impossible.

As a result of detached marital association, comes ever increasing immorality, despite efforts of churches, ethical societies and welfare organizations.

By ROGER W. BABSON, Efficiency Expert.

By nature man likes to produce. Our boy as soon as he can totter out of the door starts instinctively to make a mud pie. When he gets a little older he goes out in the back yard and gets some boards together and some shingles and some paper and builds a hut. Just as soon as he gets a knife do you have to show him how to use it? No. He instinctively begins to make a boat or an arrow. Why? Because in his soul is a natural and inborn desire to produce, and a love and a joy in production.

The salvation of our country today depends on discovering something which will revive in man that desire to produce and that joy in production which he had instinctively when he was a small boy.

Increased wages will not do it. Shorter hours will not do it. The wage workers must feel right and the employer must feel right.

The reason that some people are not successful with collective bargaining and profit sharing and all these other plans is because they think that men act according to what they say, or according to what they learn, or according to what they agree to. Men act according to their feelings.

RESIDENT HAS AWFUL EXPERIENCE.

"I was twice confined in hospitals, in the last one nothing but gruel water was injected into me 4 times a day, as my stomach would not retain any food. I suffered terribly; was reduced to a skelton. My folks saw an ad of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and it has surely saved my life. I weigh 180 lbs. now." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the carrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. —Maryville Pharmacy and all druggists.

A great many people in the towns of Nodaway county that have electricity have bought Maytag Electric Washers.

For those who do not have electricity we have a Maytag—EXACTLY LIKE THE ELECTRIC—with a little gasoline motor under the machine in the same position as the electric motor.

Maytag
Multi-Motor Washer

Is a thoroughly tried machine. It is well built and will last many years. The motor is powerful but economical in the use of fuel, and an ordinary washing with the Maytag will cost but a few cents for power.

It is easily handled and the wringer can be run either separately or with the washer, and may be swung to any desired position or instantly reversed.

The motor is started by the simple pressure of the foot on the starting wheel. It is entirely covered and there is no danger from exposed belts or chains.

News of Paris Styles.

Just when femininity is so engrossed in the problem of new Spring clothes, along comes the International News service with a few tips from Paris.

Skirts are cut a shade longer than last year, but on the other hand much narrower and the opponent of tight lacing may be reassured. No model of the Paris dressmakers demands any but the natural waist line. Corsets are practically unnecessary, says the International News Service.

Gorgeous colors, expensive materials and great simplicity of line are the features of the Paris shows of fashion models for British and American buyers.

Tailormades are very smart, particularly of a beautiful blue embroidered material. Evening gowns include a few examples of the Grecian and Oriental style drapery. Other evening gowns display silken trousers under the filmy lace overskirt, but is not thought that these will find favor for the ordinary buyer. Straight silk underslips will be substituted for the harem skirt in most cases.

About Organ Artist.

Mrs. Henry Westfall received a letter today from Mrs. J. A. Longan of Des Moines, Ia. in which she states that Gatty Sellars, the world famed English Organist composer who will give a concert at the First Christian church in this city Thursday night, recently gave a concert at the University church in Des Moines of which Dr. Charles Medbury is pastor. Mrs. Longan states that Mr. Sellars played to a delighted and large audience and the Des Moines critics say he is a wonderful descriptive player. One of his finest selections is "The Storm." Mrs. Longan is the mother of Miss Lucy Longan, a young musician of Drake university, who has played in Maryville a number of times. Miss Longan is now studying at the Reed-Burnham conservatory at Boston.

Writing With the Toes.

An apparatus has been invented which will enable an armless man to feed himself, wash his face, use a typewriter, use a knife and fork, or light his pipe or a cigarette.

This invention is worked with the toes, and consists of a few steel wires set in a frame, with arms like two of the legs of an enormous spider, attached to a table after the principle of a Bowden brake.

The inventor, who has also perfected a machine for writing with the toes, is a Mr. George Thompson, a gasfitter, of Edinburgh, Scotland.

These appliances will be tested in one of the training schools, and if approved will be supplied to men rendered armless by the war.

Broke Up the Meeting.

"Yes, it's cold," said Smith, "but nothing like what it was three years ago, when the steam from the engines froze hard and fell on the line in sheets."

"That wasn't as cold as in '87," continued Jones, "when it froze the electricity in the telephone wires, and when the thaw came all the machines were talking as hard as they could for more than five hours."

"The coldest year that I can remember was in '94," said Brown, "when the telegraph messengers had to hurry to keep themselves warm."

But this was too much, and, with silent looks of indignation, the other two left the romancer to his own reflections.

Horn-Drummond Wedding.

Miss Stella Horn of Elmo and Pearley Drummond of Gregory, South Dak., were married at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Horn near Elmo. The marriage lines were read by Rev. W. D. King, pastor of the Methodist church, South, of Elmo. Following the ceremony a luncheon was served to about twenty guests who witnessed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Drummond will leave tomorrow for Gregory where they expect to make their home.

SLOW TO ACCEPT BUDDHISM

People of Japan Loath to Embrace Faith Introduced Into the Country by Korea.

Buddhism was introduced into Japan by Korea in the year 552. It was first embraced by the higher classes, particularly in scholarly circles, but the lower classes still clung to their old faith of Shintoism. The doctrines of Buddhism were written in the Chinese language and the believers offered their prayers in that tongue.

At one time Buddhism made such strides as to become the state religion in Japan, but the people still opposed it with a determination of upholding their own Shintoism, until the statesmen and priests invented an ingenious way of explaining and interpreting the religious principles of Buddhism. They adopted the theory of monotheism as well as polytheism by saying that there is only one supreme power which is personified in the form of various gods and goddesses, according to the different countries and different institutions.

The principles of Buddhism and Shintoism were thus reconciled and, in order to convince the popular mind of this theory, Emperor Shoman patronized a movement to erect a large bronze statue of Daibutsu or Buddha at Nara, the statue being completed in the year 752 after 14 years of casting and construction.

LIKE SWORD OF DAMOCLES

How Many Others Have Unwittingly Sat in Peril of Which They Were Ignorant?

It may have chanced that some of us have unwittingly sat under a sword of Damocles and "through good luck rather than good management" have escaped its fall. Damocles himself was happily ignorant of his danger for a brief time.

The story, with its perfectly obvious moral, is that in the reign of Dionysius the Elder as the ruler of Syracuse in Greece, years before the Christian era, one Damocles, a member of the court, wishing to establish himself securely with the monarch, flattered him unduly. Being a good deal of a man and believing that "flattery, like cologne water, is to be smelled of not swallowed," Dionysius decided to teach the courtier a lesson.

He invited him to a wonderful banquet, which Damocles enjoyed greatly until he perceived above his head a sword which was held by one single hair. How soon he was able to leave his perilous station is unrecorded, but his feelings during the rest of the feast may be imagined and need not be described.

BIBLES IN STRANGE BINDINGS

All Sorts of Materials Seem to Have Been Used as Coverings for Sacred Book.

The taste for having a particular Bible bound in a manner that is out of the ordinary is common to many people.

It is strange to think of a huntsman in the wilds of Asia killing the bear, or a sailor in some northern sea catching the seal that gives the skin with which a Bible shall eventually be bound to grace the desk of some eccentric millionaire. Yet such is often the case.

One Bible is covered with a long, thick, soft hair, so shaggy that the shape of the book is hidden. This was taken from a grizzly bear. Another is made from the skin of a serpent. A grey, beaded surface, resembling glass, is presented by another binding which came from a man-eating shark.

There is a badger Bible and a skunk Bible, the latter looking for all the world like a lady's muff. The Persian sheep, the Himalaya sheep, and other foreign varieties of this family have been called upon to furnish Bible coverings. Most curious of all is a Bible bound in the skin of a giraffe.

COFFIN MADE OF CAST IRON

An archeological mystery was unearthed in Louisiana swamps a short time ago, when two negro hunters found an ancient coffin, made wholly of cast iron. The folds of a shroud are skillfully imitated in the metal, while at the feet is an hourglass design, and at the breast space for a nameplate. The head has an octagonal window opening, and the upper and lower halves are united by 15 cap screws, and have tongue-and-groove edges. There is little mention of metal burial caskets in the history of burial customs.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Faked Fur.

A new and improved method of making imitation fur has been patented in France.

It is equally suitable for the manufacture of false plush or velvet.

The process starts with hair, or a collection of animal or vegetable fibers. These are frozen in a block of ice. The ice is then sawn into slabs, and each slab is made to undergo a surface melting so as to partially free the hair fibers on one side.

After a suitable glue or cement has been applied to this surface, a sheet of flexible material is laid on to act as the foundation of the new material. When the hairs or fibers have adhered to this basis—usually rubber—the whole is freed from the ice by melting, and the imitation is complete.

Too Much of a Bad Thing.

"And here we come," droned the pilot in the Great Crystal Cave of Blackgate (fifpence entrance fee, and don't forget the guide)—"thank you kindly, ma'am!—and here we come to the celebrated and famous cavern of the 24 echoes, where only last year a gentleman who heard them suddenly and quite unexpectedly went stark, staring mad!"

"Goodness, gracious me!" exclaimed an old lady, "how perfectly shocking. How did it occur?"

"His mother-in-law," explained the guide, "called out to him; and when the poor old unfortunate fellow heard four and twenty mothers-in-law call him all at once and the same moment, it was too much for him!"—London Tit-Bits.

His Negative Merit.

Modest.

Miss Willing—Norah, if Mr. Simpson calls while I'm out, hold him until I return.

AS TO INFANT AUTHORSHIP

Many Who Afterward Achieved Greatness May Properly Be Classed as Youthful Prodigies.

Pope, who "lisped in numbers," had the moral courage to burn all his childish and boyish verses, including the epic, "Alexander." He took no chance of posthumous publication, says the Youth's Companion.

When little Tom Macaulay was seven years old he wrote a "Compendium of Universal History," beginning with the creation, and when he was eight a heroic poem on "Olaus the Great." It was natural that his mother should have cherished those proofs of early talent and have shown them occasionally to friends; but, as his nephew, Mr. Trevelyan, neatly observes, "If the affection of one generation has preserved them intact the piety of another generation refrains from submitting them to the public."

A distinguished book collector has had printed for his own pleasure and for the pleasure of his friends the "History of Moses," composed by Robert Louis Stevenson when he was six years old and dictated to his mother. The tiny volume is embellished with a facsimile of Mrs. Stevenson's manuscript and with a delightful illustration in water colors from the hand of the little prodigy. It represents the Israelites hilariously leaving Egypt. They smoke long pipes and carry umbrellas and bundles. One of them passes long enough to bear a procession Egyptian over the head. The narrative is both comprehensive and concise. It won a prize from a generous uncle in 1836, and it is today as good an example of infant authorship as we are likely to read.

HONOR PAID ST. MICHAEL

There are fragmentary customs bound up with Michaelmas which have to do with birds and winged things, for no particular reason that anybody knows. Perhaps it is a chance that it is so. But everywhere in England where Michaelmas is kept a goose is sacrificed for dinner on that day, and for years and years in Lincolnshire and Yorkshire a handful of the farmer's each sort of grain was scattered in the court or farmyard for the birds, so that luck would come to that homestead. Queen Elizabeth was eating, you may remember, her Michaelmas goose when the defeat of the Spanish armada was announced to her. Perhaps Michael's wings were hovering over the sea that day of the defeat and that those sizzling geese all over England were a sacrifice not made in vain. And perhaps, after all, these customs of cooking geese and throwing grain to birds are only just because Michaelmas comes in the harvest time. But it is nice to think that everything with wings is in some way akin to this especial saint.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Flowers That Bring Bad Luck.

In England Devonshire folk hold that it means death to bring into the house a single daffodil, when this flower first appears in the spring. There must be a bunch of them, and the cowslip is similarly hedged in by superstition. A hydrangea in the house "brings trouble," and snowdrops are "unlucky," while wild flowers generally prevent the first brood of chickens from hatching. If one wishes a plant indoors to show a large and profuse bloom he must place in the flowerpot some fresh earth from the grave of an infant baptized within twelve months. No yellow bloom should be brought into the house in May. The house with bergamot near it is never free from sickness. A plant of heliotrope in church will keep in their places any untrue wives in the congregation.

Chautauqua or Circus.

The manager was strolling about the big Chautauqua tent, which had just been set up in a small Missouri town, and the boys were laying the plank seats, when the whir of engines was heard, and two automobiles appeared, racing furiously toward the Chautauqua grounds. They stopped side by side in the dust and smoke of heavily set brakes, and the drivers leaped from their seats and ran at top speed toward the astonished Chautauqua manager.

"I'm a butcher!" gasped the first.

"I'm a butcher!" cried the second. Then both together they shouted, "I want the contract to furnish meat for the animals!"—Youth's Companion.

All Ready for Him.

At a political meeting held in a provincial town in England a crowded audience had assembled to support a parliamentary candidate.

During the speech of the candidate a man put his head in at the door and shouted in a stentorian voice, "Can anyone here sell me six pennyworth of sense?"

The speaker halted, evidently quite dumfounded; but the chairman of the meeting immediately silenced the intruder by retorting, "Yes, but you have nothing to put it in."—Youth's Companion.

Matter of Touch.

"Go away from me!" said the fashionably dressed woman to the tramp. "I wouldn't have you touch me for a dollar." "I was only goin' to touch you for a nickel, lady," came the reply.

ALGAROBA WILD FOREST TREE

Has Been Spread Over Barren Lands in Hawaii Without Any Effort of Artificial Planting.

The mesquite tree, or algaroba, was originally introduced into Hawaii by Father Bachelot, and planted in the Catholic mission grounds, Honolulu, in 1828. The original tree attained a diameter of three feet three inches, and a height of 60 feet before it was topped in 1906 to make room for a new city block.

The algaroba is the most valuable tree in Hawaii. The algaroba forests yield 20,000 cords of excellent wood annually, in addition to $100,000 worth of honey and enormous quantities of beans which furnish a valuable fattening food for stock at a time when the dry summer has exhausted the grass supply.

The algaroba tree begins to bear pods when 6 years old and when these pods are eaten by stock the small horny seeds are not crushed but rather prepared for quick germination by the action of the digestive fluids. The spread of the tree without the expensive effort of planting by artificial methods over vast areas of barren lands of Hawaii has, therefore, been due almost solely to stock, and has in this manner become a wild forest tree. The algaroba in Hawaii has a very shallow root system and is subject to windthrow in very heavy storms.

HOLD CONVERSE IN JUNGLE

Expert Asserts That All Wild Animals Have Method of Communication With Each Other.

If the chimpanzees possess the most extensive ape vocabulary—and Garner, who knew the sound and meaning of about a hundred monkey words, said they do—baboons have the crudest. Dr. Dittmers says that those in the Bronx park collection express their emotions with a roaring bark, a faint chattering, and, when frightened, a wild scream.

"But all animal life has some method of communication," says Dr. Dittmars. "In some cases it isn't vocal, but it satisfies the same need.

"When a lion is lonesome he puts his head close to the ground and roars. Possibly he knows the ground acts as a sounding board. With a different cadence this roar becomes a challenge, and other males take it up until the jungle reverberates with their din.

"Another roar with a different intensity is answered only by females. The lioness will listen to fix the direction from which his roar comes and will move toward him. Then she will roar, and he will move, and finally they meet."—Exchange.

Tooth Puller's Bad Reputation.

"To lie like a tooth puller" is in Le Roux de Lincy's "Book of French Proverbs" (Paris 1859), quoted from the "Dictionary of the French Academy" (1835). The tooth puller in those days was often a wandering mountebank who drew a crowd by telling Rabelaisian stories and indulging in horseplay. He sold quack medicines, and, of course, lied prodigiously. Lauredonque's explanation of the origin is more amusing, though it is so circumstantial that it breeds suspicion. Furthermore—and this is conclusive—"to lie like a tooth drawer" is in Philibert Joseph Le Roux's "Dictionnaire Comique" (Amsterdam 1718) with this comment, "No one lies more outrageously than a tooth drawer, who promises not to hurt, which is not possible." And Le Roux quotes Poisson's one act play, "The Basque Poet" (1668), "But all of you lie like like tooth pullers."

Flow of Language.

A colored preacher, one of the men who are never at a loss for words, was commending to his congregation one of the organs of the church, and this is how he did it: "The missionary bulletin of this church needs subscribers. It is young and unfinancial, but through the instrumentality of backbone and grit it will become an ideal. It was ushered into existence out of purely innocent contemplation of moral and religious good, which would, in all probability, result from carefully agitated principles of righteousness. The bulletin will be observed mingling in social convolutions to furnish with sheaves of harvests of those reasonable products common to social contingencies. The tone of the whole will be missionary work."

Moral Elevation.

The true greatness of a nation cannot be in triumphs of the intellect alone. Literature and art may enlarge the sphere of its influence; they may adorn it; but they are in their nature but accessories. The true grandeur of humanity is in moral elevation. . . . The surest tokens of this grandeur, in a state, are that Christian beneficence, which diffuses the greatest happiness among the greatest number, and that passionless, God-like justice, which controls the relations of the state to other states, and to all the people committed to its charge.—Charles Sumner.

For the Poor.

The Revenue Collector—You can't run that tent show and pocket the proceeds without paying the war tax. That's not a benevolence, as you claim.

The Owner Manager—My friend, if you were familiar with my circumstances and my show you'd consider the purchase of every ticket a real charity.

An Automobile Starting Battery Guaranteed for Two Years!

A GUARANTEE is the measure of a manufacturer's faith in his battery—based on past performance. If he guarantees his battery for only ninety days or six months or a year, he is probably sure that it will last that long. But beyond the period of the guarantee he is asking you to take a risk which he is not willing to take himself. It is unbusinesslike for you to take such a risk when you can buy a Philadelphia Diamond Grid Battery that is guaranteed for TWO YEARS.

The Diamond Grid is the framework on which each of the plates is formed. Its Diamond Construction is similar to the Diamond Construction used on the ways and cranes at Hog Island and in most other strong structures. In your battery the Diamond Grid means strong plates and is your insurance against plate trouble.

The Philco Retainer is a sheet of hard rubber closely perforated with long narrow slots. A Retainer is placed flat against the active material on each side of each positive plate. In any battery the positive active material tends to slough off as the battery grows older. The slots in the Philco Retainer are so narrow that the material cannot readily pass through them and the result is greatly prolonged battery life.
